To determine the extent of carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>) absorption during hemodialysis (HD), we measured the bicarbonate level in the blood and in the dialysate before and after the end of HD in 17 uremic patients undergoing CAPD, and the values were compared with those of 10 normal subjects. The dialysate bicarbonate level was significantly higher than the corresponding blood bicarbonate level after the end of HD in both groups (P less than 0.01). There was no significant difference between the two groups as regards the dialysate bicarbonate level after the end of HD. In CAPD, it is important to select the appropriate dialysate bicarbonate level. In Vitro Osteogenic Differentiation of Mouse Adipose-Derived Mesenchymal Stem Cells and Its Anti-osteoporotic Effect. Mouse adipose-derived mesenchymal stem cells (mADSCs) were isolated, characterized, and examined their osteogenic differentiation in vitro. Differentiation potential was observed by the formation of mineralized matrix. Alkaline phosphatase (ALP) activity was significantly increased on day 14, as determined by semi-quantitative reverse transcriptase polymerase chain reaction (RT-PCR) and alizarin red staining, whereas type
